The world's first robot police officer has started working. Its name is "RoboCop". It went into service for the Dubai Police last year. RoboCop's first official duty was to meet guests at the opening of a security conference in Dubai. Apart from greeting visitors, its job was to answer questions and give directions. RoboCop has a tablet, a small portable computer, for people to communicate with. People can use this tablet to pay traffic payments and use other police services. The tablet is linked to a police station, so people can talk to human police officers. In addition, RoboCop can speak six languages, including English and Arabic. The 170-centimetre-tall robot can also shake hands, recognize people's emotions and face expressions.

Dubai Police say RoboCop is the first of many robot police officers for the city. They say by 2030, 25 per cent of the Dubai police force will be robots. The officials commented that "The future is here now. The age of the robots is no longer coming. It has already arrived."

In English, there is an idiom "Let the cat out of the bag." It means to tell a secret. One day, a man went to the city to sell things. "I have a baby pig for sale. It won't cost much," he said. He held the animal above his head. He was lying. He offered the pig to a woman named Beth for one gold coin. She wanted to buy that pig because of low price. Beth gave him a coin. He gave her a bag and said, "Here's your pig." Beth looked at the bag. It was moving. She opened it to let the pig out. There was a cat inside. "He tricked me. It isn't correct," she said. Her friends stopped him. Someone said, "We need a fair person to solve this." They went to the judge. The judge asked, "Can you show how he did it?" "Look at his bag," said Beth. She opened it and let a cat out of the bag. That's how the idiom "Let the cat out of the bag" came out.
